

Getty Museum challenges public to recreate famous art with household items

LOS ANGELES, Calif. – The J. Paul Getty Museum has presented a new online challenge to help keep people entertained while social distancing in their homes.

The illustrious Los Angeles museum is challenging the public to recreate works of art, but only with objects (or people) they have on hand.

“Choose your favourite artwork. Find three things lying around your house. Recreate the artwork with those items,” the museum tweeted. “And share with us.”

The museum even provided a link to its online collection, where you can browse artwork for inspiration.
